U.S. Imports of Textiles and Apparel Under the Multifiber Arrangement: Annual Report for 1993

Publication 2763

March 1994

PREFACE

On June 15, 1993, on its own motion and pursuant to section 332(b) of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1332(b)), the U.S. International Trade Commission initiated investigation No. 332-343. The purpose of the investigation is to compile and publish data on U.S. imports of textiles and apparel under the Multifiber Arrangement (MFA). The Commission had published similar data on an annual basis from 1981 to 1992, although not pursuant to an investigation under section 332. Under investigation No. 332-343, the Commission is publishing a series of three annual reports on imports under the MFA, the first of which was published in June 1993. The current report contains 1993 data, and the third report—with 1994 data—is scheduled for publication in April 1995.

The United States has bilateral agreements or quotas on imports of products covered by the MFA with about 40 countries. This report presents data only for the top 35 supplier countries, whether or not their products are covered by quota. The country data are in terms of the product categories currently used to administer the U.S. trade agreements program under the MFA, which covers products of cotton, other vegetable fiber, wool, manmade fiber, and silk blends.

The MFA is a multilateral agreement negotiated under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The MFA provides a general framework and guiding principles for the negotiation of bilateral agreements between textile importing and exporting countries, or for unilateral action by an importing country if an agreement cannot be reached. In effect since 1974, the MFA was established to deal with problems of market disruption in textile trade, while permitting developing countries to share in expanded export opportunities. The draft final Agreement on Textiles and Clothing, negotiated as part of the GATT Uruguay Round of multilateral trade agreements, calls for a phaseout of the MFA over 10 years. The MFA phaseout is currently scheduled to begin on July 1, 1995.

An explanation of the abbreviations used in the descriptions of category coverage and a listing of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule numbers included in each category can be found in Correlation: Textile and Apparel Categories with the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States, 1992, U.S. Department of Commerce, International Trade Administration, November 1991.

HIGHLIGHTS

Bilateral agreements negotiated under the Multifiber Arrangement (MFA) regulate most U.S. imports of textiles and apparel. Countries on which the United States maintains quantitative limits, or quotas, for MFA products supplied almost 80 percent of the volume of U.S. textile and apparel imports in 1993. In the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations, completed on December 15, 1993, negotiators agreed on a 10-year phaseout of the MFA and all quotas established under MFA authority.

As of March 2, 1994, the United States had quotas on MFA-product imports from 38 countries pursuant to bilateral agreements and from 3 additional countries—Macedonia, Myanmar (Burma), and Qatar—with which it did not have agreements (table 1). The United States extended or renegotiated expiring agreements with all major supplying countries except Thailand, for which negotiations continue. It did not renew the agreement with El Salvador or extend the quota on imports from Lebanon. The agreement with Mexico expired in 1993. Schedule 3.1.2 of annex 300-B of the North American Free-Trade Agreement (NAFTA), which entered into force on January 1, 1994, provides for limits on non-originating textile and apparel products imported from Mexico and sets forth a schedule for the progressive elimination of such limits by the year 2003.

U.S. imports

U.S. imports of MFA products in 1993 rose by 9 percent over the 1992 level, to a record 15.8 billion equivalent square meters (SMEs) valued at $36 billion (tables 2 and 3). The growth was smaller than the 1992 gain of almost 14 percent. Import growth averaged 11 percent a year during the 1980s, before slowing to less than 1 percent in 1990 and to 5 percent in 1991.

Most of the slowdown in 1993 occurred in apparel imports, which reached 7.5 billion SMEs valued at $28 billion. Apparel imports grew by about 6 percent, or less than one-half the 15-percent growth in 1992. They accounted for 48 percent by volume, but a much greater 78 percent by value, of total MFA imports in 1993. Most of the growth in apparel imports that year came in cotton garments, which for the first time accounted for at least one-half of the volume of apparel imports. The popularity of natural fibers and the increases in shipments from foreign suppliers that mainly produce cotton goods contributed to the growth in cotton apparel imports.

U.S. imports of textiles posted double-digit growth for the second consecutive year in 1993, when such imports again rose by 12 percent. Yarn imports rose by 21 percent, and imports of fabric and of made-up and other textiles grew by 9 to 10 percent. Although yarn imports have rebounded considerably from their 1990 low, they remained slightly below annual levels attained during 1986-87. Imports in the other sectors reached new highs in 1993.

Import sources

The greatest import growth in 1993 came from developed countries, whose shipments enter free of quota, and from the Caribbean Basin Initiative (CBI) nations and Mexico, which receive preferential access to the U.S. apparel market. Imports from developed countries grew by 15 percent to 2.8 billion SMEs valued at $4.5 billion. Imports from Mexico and the CBI nations together advanced by 20 percent to 2.3 billion SMEs valued at $5.4 billion. Imports from all other countries, including the major Asian suppliers, rose by just under 6 percent to 10.8 billion SMEs valued at $26.1 billion.

Canada and the European Union (EU) generated most of the growth in imports from developed countries, especially in textiles. Canadian shipments have slightly more than doubled in the past 5 years during which the United States-Canada Free-Trade Agreement has been in force. Textiles make up all but a small part of the imports from Canada, unlike those from most other major suppliers, which consist mostly of apparel. As such, Canada trailed only China as the largest source of textiles in 1993, supplying 12.6 percent of the imports versus 14.2 percent for China. Intracompany transfers represent a significant share of the textile shipments from Canada, which mainly comprise manmade-fiber filament yarn and specialty fabric.

EU shipments grew by 18 percent in 1993. All the gain came in textiles, imports of which rose by 20 percent. This increase resulted mainly from larger shipments of manmade-fiber filament yarn from Germany. By contrast, EU apparel shipments fell by 4 percent. Substantially smaller shipments from Ireland and Greece in particular, and also Portugal, Denmark, and France contributed to the decline.

Mexico and the CBI nations rank among the fastest growing suppliers of apparel to the U.S. market. Between 1989 and 1993, apparel imports from the region doubled to 1.7 billion SMEs valued at almost $5.1 billion. Most of these imports originate in production-sharing operations, in which U.S. firms ship apparel parts to the region for assembly, and enter under U.S. tariff provision 9802 with duty assessed only on the value added abroad. In the late 1980s, the Reagan administration introduced preferential quotas for garments from the region assembled from fabric both made and cut in the United States. The guaranteed access levels (GALs) for the CBI nations (currently Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Haiti, Jamaica, and Panama) and the special regime quotas for Mexico spurred further U.S. apparel investment in the region. The growth in imports from Mexico also reflected anticipation of the adoption of NAFTA, which on entering into force eliminated all quotas and duties on Mexican products of U.S.-formed and cut fabric.

Despite the growth in MFA-product imports from these countries, China remains the largest supplier by far. In 1993, China supplied 13.3 percent of total import volume versus 7.8 percent for Taiwan, the second leading source. The growth in imports from China slowed to roughly 7 percent, from 14 percent in 1992. The new 3-year textile agreement with China that went into effect on January 1, 1994, limits annual quota growth for Chinese goods to zero in 1994 and to 1 percent in 1995 and 1996. In addition, the United States reached agreement with China to bring chiefly silk apparel under quota for the first time. The MFA does not cover such goods, but Chinese silk garments, mainly shirts and blouses, have become a cheap substitute for cotton and other apparel. Between 1989 and 1993, imports of Chinese silk garments accelerated by sevenfold to $1.9 billion. This compares with $3.4 billion in imports of Chinese apparel covered by the MFA.

The share of the U.S. market held by the traditional Big Three Asian suppliers—Hong Kong, Taiwan, and South Korea—has declined over the years. With their shipments falling by almost 3 percent in 1993, the Big Three supplied just 19 percent of the import market, down from 43 percent 10 years ago. Big Three textile and apparel firms face rising operating costs, largely because of labor shortages, and growing competition from lower cost nations. They also face limited quota growth in the U.S. market of roughly 1 percent a year. Therefore, they have been upgrading their export product mix and moving production of basic goods to such lower cost nations as China and the ASEAN countries.

The growth in imports from the ASEAN nations slowed considerably in 1993. Their shipments rose by 8 percent that year, after having grown by 25 percent in 1992. Although Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, and Thailand all generally showed much slower growth in 1993, the slowdown mainly reflected a 22-percent drop in imports from Singapore. Competitive pressures similar to those on the Big Three have been spurring the apparel industry in Singapore to shift low-end manufacturing facilities to neighboring nations and to develop into a service and trading center for the regional industry.

The growth in MFA imports from other important suppliers also slowed considerably in 1993. Bangladesh, India, and Pakistan all showed increases of less than 10 percent. In contrast, smaller suppliers like Egypt, Sri Lanka, and Turkey recorded gains of more than 20 percent.

¹ The agreement with Colombia expired on 12/31/93. The United States currently has a memorandum of understanding (MOU) with Colombia providing for a quota on men's and boys' wool suits (category 443).

² The agreement with Guam, a U.S. territory, is a "quota exception" for sweaters classified as products of foreign countries, but assembled in this insular area. Quota-free entry is allowed for a specified number of sweaters. Imports in excess of the specified amounts are charged to quotas established for the country of origin, usually the country where the sweater parts were knitted.

⁴ The agreement with Mexico expired on 12/31/93. Under the North American Free-Trade Agreement (NAFTA), which went into force on January 1, 1994, non-originating textile and apparel goods from Mexico are subject to restrictions and consultation levels specified in NAFTA annex 300-B, schedule 3.1.2. These restraints will be progressively eliminated by the year 2003.
