BACKGROUND: As requested by the USTR, the Commission's report will, to the extent possible, (1) provide an overview of foreign and domestic markets for renewable energy services; (2) examine trade and investment in renewable energy services markets, including barriers affecting such trade and investment, if any; and (3) if possible, discuss existing regulatory practices that generate demand for the subject services. USTR has requested that the Commission's study include examples from both developed- and developing-country markets. In addition, the USTR has asked the Commission to include examples - as appropriate - from those economies with which the United States has established, or is in the process of negotiating, free trade arrangements. To the extent possible, the Commission is also requested to present information on trade and market conditions for those goods related to the subject renewable energy services. For the purpose of this study, renewable energy services are defined to include: the use of renewable power sources - including wind, solar energy, biomass fuels, tidal energy, and geothermal energy - in heating or electricity generation; the sale of renewable energy; geological analysis, resource assessment, and other services incidental to the evaluation, planning, or siting of a renewable energy project or facility; design, construction, and installation services for renewable energy equipment and facilities; the operation, management, and monitoring of renewable energy projects or facilities; decommissioning services; services incidental to the issuance of renewable energy certificates; research and development services related to renewable energy; and other services incidental to the development and use of renewable power sources.

The USTR asked that the Commission furnish its report by October 1, 2005, and that the Commission make the report available to the public in its entirety.
